

Celebrate National Poetry Month with Poetry Workshops at the Elizabeth Taber Library

Thursday, April 3rd at 4:00pm

Have you ever wondered what separates good poets from the rest? How do I look at a poem to better understand the meaning, style and power of its works? This workshop will be an introduction to poetry, where we'll examine a variety of different writers, why they use a certain form, select particular words or end a line where they choose. Tony Pedevillano, published poet and teacher for over thirty years, will help guide you through the process and help you appreciate the poet's craft.

Friday, April 18th at 11:00am

Dr. Charles White will present different techniques and ways to approach poetry as a reader. Dr. Charles White is a long time Marion resident and an American Literature and film professor at UMASS Dartmouth.

Tuesday, April 29th at 4:00pm

Poetry Reading: Poets and poetry lovers, come celebrate National Poetry Month at the Elizabeth Taber Library by reading your own poetry or some by your favorite poet. Registration is required to take part in the poetry reading. Each participant will be given 5 minutes to read their poetry selection. All are welcome to attend and enjoy this free event.
